To Whom It May Concern

Reference Garth Graham and Shane Graham

This is to confirm I have known Garth and Shane Graham for some 30 years through business relationships and involvement in the fabric structure industry.

Their activities in this area have covered the development and manufacture of specialist net materials at their Yamanto plant through to advice, contracting, design, project management, shop production, site installation and maintenance services for tension fabric and net projects ranging from domestic scale to multi-hectare solar and hail protection structures.

Their activities as a supplier of fabric and steel components to the solar and hail protection project industry have covered the development in recent times, the USA and UAE, where they supplied entire structures to projects in those countries and have completed work for Birdair, who are one of the world leaders in membrane technology. Furthermore, they were also involved in the mass production of hundreds of demountable shade shelters for the US Army for the IRAQ campaign and other specialised army shade projects.

Project locations have been throughout Australia for both private and government clients and, in recent times, USA, where Garth worked with one of the world leaders in membrane technology, Birdair, as a maintenance inspector for their many large roof structures and specialised army projects.

Their overall knowledge experience and record in the industry is such that our company is pleased to continue a positive working relationship with their team.
